SMEC implement a 12-month probation period for members as this can be quite beneficial. It allows the club to evaluate new members' commitment and behaviour within the membership before granting them full membership. This period can help ensure that new members align with the club's values and goals, and it provides an opportunity for both the club and the new member to assess if the membership is mutually beneficial.

However, it's important to highlight that this probation period is not a "trial" period in the sense of having fewer rights or protections. Instead, it should be framed as an introductory phase where new members can learn about the club, understand the rules and procedures, and to become a valued part of the club.
